

Posts in the Prairie

What are all those posts for?

Have you been walking, running, or riding your bike in Brentwood Heights lately, somewhere between Whispering Woods and Whispering Grasses Walkway? If so, you might have spotted some late season posts sprouting up here and there.

Quite a few posts, actually! And they are at two different heights. Some of the posts are taller than others, and each taller one will become home to a rectangular interpretive sign panel. The shorter posts will also have interpretive panels, but they will be small ovals, just covering the cut surface of the posts. All of the panels will feature works by local artists, many by school children, others by adults in the neighborhood.

The Friends of Dr. E.W. Coffin Society and the Environment Committee at Dr. Coffin School have been working extremely hard over several years to bring this interpretive signage project to fruition. Numerous parents, teachers, students, city employees, and community members have contributed their time and expertise to make our Whispering Signs unique, evocative, and informative. It won't be long until the signs are installed, so keep a look out!

Meanwhile, how many posts can you find altogether? Can you find the ones with the coordinates listed here? Are they the tall posts or the short ones, or a combination of heights? What would you put on a sign in each of the locations where you find a post? What is something special to you about each location? Stay posted for signs on posts nearby.

*Environmentally yours,
Polly Lee Knowlton Cockett*
